Advanced Biofuels USA Seeks End-of-Year Donations to Enable the Nonprofit Organization to Continue to Provide Free Services and Materials

Advanced Biofuels USA, an all-volunteer nonprofit educational organization, advocates for the adoption of advanced biofuels as an energy security, military flexibility, economic development and climate change mitigation solution. This December, the organization initiated a campaign to raise $10,000 to enable it to continue to pursue this mission.

“Right now, the future of advanced biofuels throughout the world is threatened by unscientific fear-mongering that feeds on real concerns about the adequacy of our planet to support its population with sufficient food and power. There is a desperate need for an organization that strives to build a bridge of understanding, to bring knowledge and information to decision-makers and the general public. Advanced Biofuels USA is that organization,” explains executive director, Joanne Ivancic.

They are asking for just $5 from each supporter to help them bring reasoned discourse to this heated debate. They keep expenses down by concentrating on providing information via their web site, www.AdvancedBiofuelsUSA.org, which is read by thousands around the world, with 50,000 page views per week. Growing over the past year to an average of 10 page views per visitor, Ivancic is convinced that the web site is a valued international resource.

“We thought that “growing your own” fuel, taking advantage of nature’s carbon cycle reviving faltering economies and mitigating climate change would attract the support of millions. But no. We have met resistance at every turn,” continued Ivancic. “We are asking our supporters and the subscribers to our free newsletter to think of Advanced Biofuels USA as they consider their holiday giving.”

All educational and consulting services and materials from Advanced Biofuels USA are free either through the website or by request.
