2016 National Renewable Energy Policy Forum — March 16-17, 2016 — Washington, DC

Setting the Renewable Energy Agenda for the New Congress, States, and 2016 Presidential Campaign

The 2016 National Renewable Energy Policy Forum takes place at a crucial time. Energy policy is figuring prominently in the 2016 election season as candidates debate the role of renewable energy in the nation's future. As the country prepares for new leadership, this forum will identify a strong policy agenda that will support the rapidly evolving energy market and continued progress of the renewable energy industry.

The renewable energy industry's momentum is successfully expanding investment, reducing costs, and delivering clean, renewable energy to an increasing number of Americans. As a mainstream resource enjoying bipartisan support, renewable energy is contributing significantly to our nation's economic growth, energy security, and environmental health. The nation's energy policy framework requires modernization and greater certainty to ensure the American people and our economy are served with reliable, affordable, resilient, and sustainable supplies of renewable power and fuels.

This Forum will identify workable strategies for renewable electricity and fuels for the nation's next leaders. Top government officials and industry visionaries will gather to discuss the state of renewable energy policy and the value of pursuing innovative energy market reforms, advancing new financing measures, implementing the Renewable Fuel Standard and low-carbon fuel standards, developing Clean Power Plan compliance strategies, increasing renewable portfolio standards, among other issues. These recommendations can then be set in place to ensure the continued development of renewable energy and all of its benefits across the country.

International Biomass Conference and Expo — April 11-14, 2016—
Charlotte, NC

The International Biomass Conference & Expo unites current and future producers of biomass-derived power, fuels and chemicals with waste generators, energy crop growers, municipal leaders, utility executives, technology providers, equipment manufacturers, project developers, investors and policy makers. The event fosters public and private partnerships that help bioenergy producers and large-scale waste generators identify and assess available production resources and viable technology solutions for improving operational efficiencies and reducing industrial greenhouse gas emissions. Volatile energy costs, mounting climate change concerns and the anticipation of federal carbon cap-and-trade policies are compelling waste generators to think differently – much differently – about waste liabilities and, in some cases, the rising value of already valuable process side streams.
